Abstract

A filter material is described, in particular for preparing filter pouches and filter bags for infusion beverages which due to its content of superabsorber fibers which absorb large amounts of liquid allows an optimal leaching of the filling material to be infused even without movement in the leaching liquid, as well as a process for preparing such a filter material.

EP 0 734 654 A2